StrucSure Home Warranty Backs Universal Design Living Laboratory

Ten-Year Structural Warranty to Benefit Family Living in National Demonstration Home

DENVER – April 14, 2010 – StrucSure Home Warranty, one of the major providers in the home warranty industry, has announced its sponsorship of the Universal Design Living Laboratory (UDLL). StrucSure will provide a ten-year structural home warranty on the 3,500 square foot home being built in Columbus, Ohio to which builders, designers and other vendors are donating their products or time.

The UDLL home will serve as a residence for Dr. Rosemarie Rossetti, who was paralyzed in 1998 from the waist down in an accident, and her husband Mark Leder. The house will also double as a learning lab for builders and consumers as it incorporates unobtrusive universal design, resource and energy efficient “green building” methods, advanced automation technology, a healthy home construction approach, and the design principles of feng shui.

“It is an honor to be part of this project,” said Christopher Macaulay, President of StrucSure Home Warranty. “The UDLL will continue to inform and inspire the building community on the importance of construction practices that allow people of all abilities to live comfortably in their homes.”

“This contribution from StrucSure provides greater security and peace of mind for us while we are living in this home,” said Rosetti.

The insurance-backed, ten-year structural home warranty donated by StrucSure provides coverage if any major structural defects occur in the home for 10 years after completion. For more information on the Universal Design Laboratory, visit <http://www.udll.com>.
